ADMINISTERING OXYGEN
EASY ON THE SHOOTING
WHAT WHALES DON'T KNOW
WHY SO FEW GREAT MEN?
—By Arthur Brisbane—

The world of high finance is administering, or promising financial oxygen to Germany, in rather small doses. Temporary closing of German and Hungarian banks may be a prelude to something more serious. The German mark, victim of many ups and downs, is not in favor. Banks of London, Belgium and other places refuse to accept marks.

Our good old Wall Street paused in its operations yesterday, unhappy brokers only selling one million, one hundred thousand shares of stock.

Perhaps tomorrow will be more rosy on both sides of the ocean. Perhaps not. But, you will see prosperity come back far greater than ever. Just at present we are paying for the war. Many of us did not realize that it would have to be done, some day.

Mr. Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, fears that unrest in the United States may become dangerous, and thinks industry should keep men working, that the unemployed may not become "objects of charity by committees of taxpayers."

However, industry, in order to employ men, must produce something. If there is nobody to buy what is produced, who is going to meet the payroll?

In England, they have the dols to take care of their 2,500,000 unemployed, believing it to be cheaper than the cost of revolution.

We are not going to have any revolution here, but somebody should warn the police chief of Providence, R. I., who orders his men controlling strikers. "If anyone refuses to move, use your clubs. If there is persistent refusal, read the riot act, and then shoot."

Shooting is easy, but its results are sometimes dangerous, especially when there are six or seven millions out of work, to sympathize with those that are shot.

One shooting of an Austrian archduke started the big war, one shot can blow up a big powder factory.

Shooting should be postponed as long as possible. Even the dols would be better than promiscuous shooting, in case the unemployed crowd happened not to take the shooting kindly.

The old English lady said to the bartender who delivered a glass of water with her gin, "young man, I have trouble enough without drinking water."

We have trouble enough without starting unnecessary shooting.

A huge whale plows the Northern seas, swallowing millions of tiny marine creatures, on which he lives, knowing nothing of his past. Little does he dream that ancestor was a little creature, the "tree shrew," that you could carry in your vest pocket.

Still less can he imagine his future, or know that his body will be boiled down, and the oil sprayed on park trees to kill an epidemic of plant lice.

From tree shrew to a whale 90 feet long, and from giant whale to

SCHOOL BUDGET MEETING TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Hearing On 1932 Finances
Is Postponed From Thursday

40 SEEK JOB AS SUPERINTENDENT

No Action Likely, Board Members Say, Until
August Session

Action looking toward the appointment of a public school superintendent to succeed the late John S. Alan probably will not be taken until regular meeting of board of education Monday, Aug. 5, members of the group declared today as announcement was made of the postponement of the adjourned meeting scheduled for Thursday night.

40 Applications In
However, it was pointed out, future action of the board is contingent entirely upon developments, chief among which is the fact that approximately 40 applications, according to members of the board, have been received to date from candidates for the superintendent's post. At the same time, the board will expedite the task as much as possible.

Applications are being received daily, in various forms, and filed for consideration.

The board had planned to meet Thursday night for the purpose of holding a public hearing on the 1932 budget and, also, to discuss the superintendent's resignation.

Budget Action Postponed
However, because of the fact that 10 days must elapse between the publication of the legal notice and the hearing, it has been necessary to postpone the budget action until Tuesday night.

It is possible that steps toward narrowing the field of candidates for the school post may be taken at next Tuesday's meeting but it is entirely improbable, board members said, that action of a definite nature will be taken inasmuch as Atty. Joel H. Sharp, vice president of the board, is expected to be absent.

Sharp is vacationing in Canada.

SHRINERS FACE VARIED PROGRAM

Night Parade, Selection
Of Convention City,
Scheduled Today

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, O., July 15.—While members of the imperial council of the nobles of the Mystic Shrine were selecting a new convention city, installing Thomas J. Houston, of Chicago as imperial potentate, and selecting a new member of the outer guard, others at the shrine convention here prepared for tonight's torchlight parade.

Houston, who became a member of the outer guard in 1921, and moved up to be Chicago's second imperial potentate, will review the train of torch bearers as they pass into the municipal stadium. Ten thousand marchers are expected to carry their flaming lights of many colors.

Approximately 40,000 persons attended the shrine pageant, "A Night in the Orient" last night.

As the divan met to select the convention city San Francisco appeared to be favored by the officials. Chicago was a strong contender.

The imperial council held its first session yesterday but took no action on any matters before it.

Other events today included drills by twenty patrols from visiting temples, band concerts, circus acts and boat rides.

Wives Are Traded, Children Divided, Everybody Happy

POMONA, Cal., July 15.—George B. Spotswood, and F. L. Stevens have announced a dinner for their families here Saturday to celebrate their exchange of wives.

Their new romances began over a bridge table.

The original Spotswoods were married in Canada 11 years ago and have two children, Doris, 10, and Billie, 9. The original Stevenses were married here 20 years ago and also have two children, Dale, 19, and Thelma, 7.

Spotswood and Mrs. Stevens went to Las Vegas, Nev., obtained divorces on grounds of mental cruelty and were married, Stevens and Mrs. Spotswood caring for the children meantime. When they returned Stevens and Mrs. Spotswood went to Las Vegas and were married last June 30.

COUNTY JAIL IS 'DISGRACE' SAYS VISITING BOARD

Sheriff, Wife Lauded for Efforts to Make It
"Answer Purpose"

FAIRMOUNT HOME
GIVEN APPROVAL

Superintendent, Matron
At County Home Are Commended

"The jail at Lisbon is a disgrace to Columbiana county." Thus the board of county visitors described the county prison in a report on file today with Probate Judge Lodge Riddle following an inspection of the jail, the Fairmount Children's home and the county infirmary.

"Same Old Jail"
In their report on the jail, the board said: "Same old jail of which nothing new can be said. A disgrace to Columbiana county. Sheriff Barlow and his wife are doing all that can be done to make it answer its purpose. Columbiana county needs a new jail as it needs nothing else."

The Fairmount home is reported in excellent condition.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Neill, superintendent and matron, respectively, at the county home, are highly commended for the orderly and cleanly condition of the home buildings.

However, the board recommends new floors in the two dining rooms.

Farming Praised
Special mention is made in the report of the high order of farming at the home.

TRAFFIC LIGHT IS PROTESTED

Petitioners Don't Want Signal At North Howard Ave. And West Second St.

Installation of a traffic signal light at the intersection of North Howard ave and West Second st was being greeted by a petition of protest circulated today by residents of the two streets.

The light was installed at the intersection after it was removed from the corner of East State st and Ohio ave.

Petitioners claim flow of vehicular traffic at the intersection is too slight to warrant installation of a light there. The matter will be presented to council next Tuesday night, they said.

Fall, Glad That "It's All Settled", Ready For Prison

Awaits Trip to Santa Fe Penitentiary; "I've Many Friends in Santa Fe," He Says, "But I Hope I Don't Find Them In Jail"

EL PASO, TEX., July 15.—His long fight to escape prison ended, Albert B. Fall, aged and in ill health, today faced a trip from the mansion he built here 25 years ago to a penitentiary at Santa Fe, New Mexico.

While his wife and daughters hovered about, attending to his minutest needs, Fall sat in pajamas in a big arm chair awaiting the hour of departure to serve the prison sentence resulting from his conviction on a charge of accepting a bribe as secretary of the interior.

Receives Ruling Calmly
He received calmly and with a flash of humor the news that his sentence of a year and a day, by a ruling of Attorney General Mitchell, would be served in the city where he began the career that carried him to a post in the cabinet of President Harding.

Fall said he did not know when he would leave for Santa Fe, but he was in no sense dismayed. He said he even wished he was physically able to do all the things expected of a prisoner.

"Yes, gentlemen, I have many friends in Santa Fe," he said, as he smoked the stump of a cigar. "But I hope I won't find them in the penitentiary."

"It is a relief to have it all settled," he said.

THOUSANDS APPLAUD AS SHRINERS MARCH

Outstanding bargains will be offered in virtually every line of merchandise at all of the stores of the group participating in the event.

Wedding Plans Are Delayed As Auto Goes Over Hillside

Columbiana Man and Bride-Elect Escape With Bruises In 20-Foot Plunge; Couple To Get Another Car for Honeymoon Trip

Wedding plans of Scovell McBurney of Columbiana and his bride-to-be, Miss Esther Pine, also of Columbiana, were temporarily delayed yesterday, as the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a guard rail and went over a 20-foot embankment on the Leetonia road north of Lisbon.

Get License
Just before the accident, McBurney and Miss Pine had appeared before Judge Lodge Riddle in probate court, securing the necessary papers with which to be married.

They left immediately after securing the license for the home of the parents of the bride groom in Columbiana, with the intention of returning to Lisbon during the afternoon when Rev. F. C. Lake, pastor of the Christian church, was to make them man and wife.

McBurney was driving just north of Lisbon, when he suddenly lost control of the car and it crashed through a heavy guard rail and down over the embankment into a stream below.

Escape Serious Injury
Neither Mr. McBurney nor his bride-to-be were seriously injured, the former suffering a badly scratched and bruised face, and Miss Pine several cuts on the face.

The young couple announce that they will secure the use of another car and proceed with their plans, which include a honeymoon trip east after the marriage ceremony.

Seventh Critically Ill Following Drinking Party at Pennsylvania Camp Tuesday

TAMAQUA, Pa., July 15.—Six men were dead today and another critically ill from drinking an alcoholic preparation containing poison. Meanwhile state police were searching for an eighth man believed to have been a member of the group.

Daniel Evans, 54, staggered into police headquarters yesterday and told he was sick. Before he died he told police that some of his friends were ill at a camp on the outskirts of town. Officers found two men dead at the camp, and another dead at a nearby gasoline station. Later a motorist saw a man topple into a creek near the camp. He died soon after being taken to a hospital. The sixth man died at a hospital last night.

Although about 35 men were at the camp police said they were fairly certain only eight men comprised the group which had obtained the poison alcohol.

Early this morning the two fliers decided to postpone the flight until later, owing to reports of unfavorable weather conditions, but during the forenoon more promising conditions were reported and they decided to hop off about noon as they had originally planned.

Dr. James H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist, in New York, had been keeping them informed of conditions over the great circle route, which they planned to traverse.

He notified them they would have favoring winds, but that there were low clouds over most of the Atlantic.

How They Sleep

CLAREMORE, Okla., July 15.—Well, this was a great day for Gatty and Post. It was just an ordinary day for Claremore, but it was a big thing for those boys. They never saw a town like ours. We built a real airport in four days just to welcome 'em.

I was with 'em in Tulsa last night and flew over here in the Winnie Mae with them today. It's the combination of the two that make 'em so great.

I'd bet on 'em going around the world end ways and cross both poles.

In all the excitement and rushing about, you know when they sleep? At the banquets. They said if it wasn't for banquets they wouldn't have any time to sleep at all. Smart fellows. Yours,

GUN BEHIND THE DOOR

Fifty-seven thousand Seattle voters went to the polls Monday to decide what would be done with Mayor Frank Edwards. Thirty-six thousand voted for recall; today, Seattle is without a mayor. Its city council will elect another within a few weeks.

Former Mayor Edwards got into trouble over appointments and dismissals he made which aroused the critical wrath of the 36,000 who voted to recall him. Their spokesmen declare Seattle has established an important principle by ousting him because of the public utilities issue involved. Former Mayor Edwards dismissed the head of the publicly owned city electric light company last March, a move interpreted by the people as a hostile gesture. "The Seattle situation will have tremendous results," is the way the champions of public ownership put it. The success of the recall serves notice on friends and foes of public ownership that Seattle is definitely committed to protection and progress for its city owned utility. Enthusiasm may have carried them away; the success of a recall in Seattle will not affect the public's ideas on public ownership one way or the other.

A more significant effect of the election is a reminder made to Americans of the use of the recall, introduced into the United States by Los Angeles in 1903. The idea was given a wide application, being incorporated in more than 400 municipal charters, as well as a number of state institutions. Its use, however, has been less frequent than was anticipated, largely because the existence of the power of recall has tended to check malfeasance. Woodrow Wilson called it a "gun behind a door."

It is a gun that satisfies the people well. Public officials are agents of the public will, and as long as humans continue to be imperfect the people must have the right to protect themselves against imperfections.

What Others Say

"AUTOMOBILITY"
This word has not yet a place in the dictionaries. But even the word "automobile" does not appear in the New English dictionary, begun in 1888 and completed in 1928. An "aeroplane" is there defined as "a plane placed in the air for aerostatical experiment." So be attached to a dynamometer for purposes of measurement. With upward of 35,000,000 self-propelling vehicles in the world, future dictionaries will surely include some such word as automobility to define the condition in which perhaps half the people of the civilized countries of the earth find themselves nearly every day in the year. At the rate of increase since the beginning of the century, in another period such as that taken by the lexicographers to gather and define the words in the English language from A to Z, the vision of Ezekiel will be seen every where in the earth: "And where the living creatures went the wheels went beside them."

Even at present, the entire population of the United States could be accommodated in our 26,697,398 automotive vehicles—one car for every 49 persons. At the other end of the list is the Yemen, along whose coasts the Queen of Sheba must have passed in her camel train on her way to look upon the glory of Solomon, with his 1,400 chariots. But Ibn Saud, a little to the north in the Nejd, has recently purchased motor cars for his journeys around his enlarged domain, and no doubt the Yemen and Oman, on either side of the Arabian desert, will soon cease to be at the bottom of the motor list along with China, Ethiopia, the Solomon Islands and Eritrea.

The theory has been proposed that civilization is measured by the degree of people's automobility. As the vegetable sought to get free of its roots and approach, if not enter, another kingdom, man has endeavored to get free of his feet to attain a higher and higher state of mobility—even equipping his wheels with wings. So has man dreamed for himself that with which he has endowed his gods and his angels. Only one memory of the race sizes to disturb this otherwise satisfying theory: Ixion was, for punishment, tied to a wheel that ceaselessly revolved, save once when Orpheus sang his grief—New York Times.

WEAR BUNNS GOOD SHOES

by O.O. McIntyre

AT SEA. July 15—There is dust in mid ocean and I hasten to add I have touched nothing stronger than Evan. This morning I discovered a thin wind whirled layer on my typewriter and other articles in the cabin it drifts from volcanic eruptions and often settles on various stretches of the sea.

So for lack of something to do I went in for a round of dusting. I rub a mean rag on smooth surfaces, too. Tonight is gala night and I expect to be one of the old fools who will wear a paper cap and sit at a cable all evening holding aloft a red, toy balloon.

It is odd how a sea voyage changes one's routine. You do things aboardship you would never think of doing elsewhere. For instance, for years I have eaten but two meals a day—breakfast and dinner. But here I go in for breakfast, 10 o'clock bullion, lunch, 5 o'clock tea and cakes and late dinner.

More familiar faces begin to appear as the vessel nears the other side. John Anderson, the dramatic critic, waved from a deck chair today. Henry McBride, the art critic, is also a passenger. Then there are those strange creatures who appear only around dusk. It is like lifting an old log.

Here a whirled Maris, there a tottering Countess and over yonder an ash-faced fellow with a witch-like glow of hair. They crawl once or twice slowly around the promenade and vanish. Seldom are they seen save for these brief constitutional

"The captain varies his dinner guests nightly. My wife and I are on his list tonight along with Mrs. Ray Long, Mrs. Conde Nast, Gloria Swanson, Edna Ferber, Gertrude Lawrence and two others whose names I did not catch from the bowing courier who called at the cabin with the summons. Or is it a command?

Edna Ferber loaned me a book yesterday which kept me awake half the night. It is titled "Sanctuary" and opens with this thrilling situation. Two men meet at a spring in the forest. One keeps the other there at a pistol point for two hours and always you expect something to happen but not much does. And I needed sleep.

There are on board five titles, one senator, one judge, one congressman, one colonel, three captains and to my certain knowledge two international gigolos.

I am told that the ocean "greyhounds"—professional gamblers—are along with the rest of us facing a depression. Many of the trans-Atlantic sharks have shifted to the Pacific in the hope of better opportunities. Few passengers will gamble for high stakes these perilous times.

And the auction pool nightly on this ship brings only a handful. There are few bids above four pounds and last night the auctioneer threatened to quit in disgust if interest did not quicken. During the boom days I have seen a night's pool reach $10,000. Last night it was less than $500.

Dropping into the smoking room after 14 turns on the promenade I sank down in a deep cushioned chair. Next to me was a man with the largest hands I ever saw and I noticed the one nearest me was haired over with thick reddish fuzz. I thought of a gorilla and slipped off into a light nap. It was probably no more than a minute but I was chased through jungle after jungle by an army of chattering baboons.

I have seen three young flapper types lifting lorgnettes and if not due to nearsightedness is certainly a silly bit of swank. By tomorrow I'll be even more cranky.

This piece sounds unusually goofy. First dust on the ocean and just now in the trunk room something buzzed out which I never saw a bumble bee. I'm afraid to look under the bed for fear I'll see a partridge or something.

Anyway the journey is almost ended. I hear them rustling trunks for Plymouth. That's the British Hoboken plus crouper weather.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, July 16

A day of important affairs, with moves in the direction of "big business" and fulfilled ambitions may be looked for according to the predominant astral interventions. It is a favorable time for approaching large corporations for secret bodies for financial support or other favorable cooperation, but impetuosity or rashness should be avoided. Tact or diplomacy should be preferred.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of important affairs and affiliations with large enterprises, corporations, rings or secret bodies. A child born on this day should be lively, clever, ambitious and resourceful.

Infant Surgery

A very common deformity seen at birth is that condition known as harelip. This congenital deformity is usually accompanied by a cleft palate.

There has been a delay in the union of the palate and of the lip, so that a middle cleft or space exists. This defect is of importance, not only from a cosmetic point of view, but because the deformity may interfere seriously with the nutrition of the infant. The feedings are taken with difficulty if at all.

As a rule, the defect may be corrected by surgical measures. The opening can be closed and although there is a persisting scar and some deformity, function of the mouth is brought to normal.

There has been much dispute as to when the operation should be performed. It is generally agreed now that a cleft palate should not be operated upon until the child has reached the age of six months. On the other hand, the operation for harelip is recommended in early infancy.

The third to sixth month, or even earlier, may be the time of choice. This is particularly important if the deformed lip interferes with the proper nutrition of the child. Even though children with this deformity cannot nurse from the breast they may be able to take milk from the bottle. Sometimes it is necessary to pour milk into the child's mouth from a teaspoon. The feeding may also be accomplished by the passage of a soft rubber tube into the gullet.

Since it is important that the nutrition of the infant be maintained you can see why the operation should be done as soon as possible. Your doctor will advise you about this.

The operation is not a difficult one and the results obtained are very gratifying. The operation may be done with the use of a very small amount of chloroform.

SECRET PLACES

By Joan Sutherland

of Preceding Instalments: For Staire 36 years old, at the British Embassy, was bored by the mod-ern-boiled young girl who met Toni Wareham, daughter of Lady Alice Wareham. They were engaged after a 14-hour courtship, were to marry in October. He Wareham had gone to meet her at the summer, his old friend, Ronald Hal-ler married Toni's beau-tiful sister Greta about a year. His newspaper work de-ferred long hours and Greta went to the company of a young man named Henri D'Ar-blaye, a Frenchman who was a costly emerald and saw her entering a gam-ble club with D'Arblaye. But he did not know that she lost her money, which D'Arblaye Greta, left Le Tonquet to see her Paris den-tist, expected that day, that work kept him in Paris and Toni very much in-terested to see him in Paris. He found him at dinner with her, and would not accept his explanation that, Ron-ald, busy, Greta had invit-ed to dinner. Feeling blue, he wandered over to the quarter, where he met a model he had seen in the studio of his friend Kevell, famous artist. She was sick, had no money, and arranged to advance him some money until he returned to Paris. The day Toni phoned, asking for her, a few days later he went to Le Tonquet, and found Maitre Siboux, the Wareham house instinctive XIV. woke the next morning and a moment or two drowsily. A short spell of delirious-ness—parties, long golden sunshines, tennis, the buy-tousseu—lay between her wedding day in October. She-party separated for its amusements, and occupa-tionally, so it appeared, and much to Greta's an-ger. D'Arblaye motored over to the Rochegards and joined playing in a foursome and her as a partner.

too, he maneuvered that could walk back to the together, and as they drew gardens Greta's annoyance better of her tact. He played, what possessed you to her this morning?" she said. "I will not be con-scientious. Why should I do not want a scandal, and of have one."

He looked at her curiously. "I suppose not. I want to see you. I don't wish to have gossip myself in connection with more than you do. How ex-cytrical women are! ways see their own point of view."

He was to act. "Yes," she said; "I dropped him in the pond. As a matter of fact, he got tired of my prowl and went on, sending me back to you. He is a very tactful godfather. Feodor-most tactful. You chose him very well."

Feodor laughed, made some care-less rejoinder, slipped his hand with in her arm, and stroled on towards the valley, and if Toni's pulses beat rather faster than usual, no one was to know but herself. She need not have feared. The little valley was empty, the gate into the garden beyond closed. They strolled across, opened the gate, went up through a plantation of oak and beech, and arrived in the garden, to find Lady Alice, Greta, and one or two guests who were expected to lunch, sitting in the shade, with long drinks ready for the thirsty golfers.

It seemed to Toni that the after-noon was double its usual length. All that time was spent in needless anxiety for Greta. She thought she realized now the meaning of the premonition of disaster which had lately weighed upon her spirits. It was something to do with Greta. Greta was taking a risk beyond her power to carry through successfully. With some men it might not have mattered, but D'Arblaye...there was danger; and much as she hated any further interference, Toni was determined to speak with her sister that very day.

The opportunity came when they were dressing for dinner. Greta had just dismissed her maid and was preparing to go downstairs, but on Toni's arrival she looked at her in some surprise.

Toni shut the door behind her, stood looking at her sister in sil-ence, then went slowly across, and standing at the dressing-table be-gan to play with one of the orna-ments upon it. This hesitation was so unlike Toni that Greta was amazed.

"My dear child, what is it?" she said. "You want to say something to me, I suppose. Well, cut with it. You're not usually so backward."

"Yes," she said slowly, and looked deliberately at her sister "I do. Greta, this morning as I was com-ing back from golf with the men—I was a little ahead. I was walking with Maitre Siboux and I—we saw you and D'Arblaye."

Greta's slender figure stiffened, but beyond that slight tension of her muscles she did not betray her-self. After a moment she spoke al-most indifferently.

"Well," she said. "What of it? Is a kiss such a terrible thing, Toni?" Toni's steady regard did not waver.

"No," she said; "not necessarily. I quite agree that one may kiss—I suppose we all do. But—it depends. Some kisses don't mean anything. Yours and D'Arblaye's meant a good deal. I am not blind, Greta."

"No," Greta's rising tone held mockery. "No, Toni, my dear. You're not in the least blind. You are a most sophisticated little debutante, aren't you? But what did actually cross your mind when you saw me kiss D'Arblaye?"

Toni put the mockery aside. "Greta," she said, "you were in D'Arblaye's arms. You were kissing him, and he was kissing you. Oh, not just even an ordinary kiss. I am sorry to appear to interfere. It's not my business, I know, but I must now. I never meant to speak to you again about any of your flirtations—they are not my affair. But over this it is different. There was somebody else aware of it as well as myself. That's the whole position. You're not in love with D'Arblaye. You don't think any woman could be actually—anyway not a woman like yourself—and you are flirting with him—at least...."

She stopped a minute, seeing the dangerous glitter in her sister's eyes, and then summoning courage, went on again.

"Greta, please don't get angry about this. I'm terribly sorry to have to say anything. If Maitre Siboux hadn't been with me—well, probably I shouldn't. I made some excuse. I said that D'Arblaye had been bothering you, that I sup-posed he had just lost his head. He took it awfully well. We turned back—you see, Ronnie was just behind us—and I made some excuse and got the men to go a longer way round, and Maitre Siboux came on by himself. You had gone then I suppose. Anyhow, the valley was empty when we came through. You see, D'Arblaye is a dangerous kind of man—you must know that as well as I do. Everybody in Paris knows something of his reputation. Greta, for heaven's sake do stop it! You are running a most awful risk. You can't care for D'Arblaye as much as you do for Ronnie. You wouldn't want Ronnie to divorce you, and have all the scandal and the fuss just to marry D'Arblaye, would you? Besides, he's not the sort one could marry. He's—he's—"

She broke off. Greta, who had sat quite still during her sister's out-burst, now suddenly got to her feet. ((To be continued))

CALL OLD CITY HALL FIRE TRAP

Fire Inspectors Condemn Building at East Liverpool

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 15.—The 54-year-old city hall and jail here, which occupies a site origi-nally deeded for market house pur-poses, was condemned as a "fire trap" today by S. C. Griffith of Col-umbus, investigator for the division of building inspection, state de-partment of industrial relations.

Griffith's report, submitted to Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, said the "building is a wreck and in danger of collapsing" and "persons sleeping on the third floor of the structure would be trapped in the event of fire."

The investigator said that patrol-men "expressed themselves as fear-ful for their lives from the danger of the collapse of the structure which is inflammable."

As a result of Griffith's report, Field Deputy Edward Dickson of Steubenville, representing the state department of inspection, state fac-tories and workshops, was ordered to inspect the building and submit his report to state officials at Colum-bus.

After a like report was made by the state fire marshal on the old central fire station here two years ago, the building was ordered razed and the city erected a new structure at a cost of $60,000. Three times within the last five years, electors have defeated proposed bond issues for a new municipal building.

SUN DRYING UP FARMER'S CROPS

Dry Spell Hits Central
Ohio; Agriculturists
Are Alarmed

COLUMBUS, O., July 15—Ohio today faced the prospect of another summer drought as a broiling sun continued to hold the mercury near the 100-degree mark with weather reports bringing no promise of early rains.

Thus far crops have suffered no serious damage, but farmers were alarmed over the lack of rainfall during the past six weeks and a repetition of the disastrous drought of 1930 was threatened in central counties, according to W. H. Alexander, government meteorologist here.

Other Localities Normal
Alexander said, however, that precipitation in other localities had been almost normal, forestalling drought conditions as widespread as those of last summer when thousands of dollars in livestock and crops were lost.

State-wide rainfall shortage this year is only slightly less than in 1930, Alexander revealed. At the end of June, last year, the shortage was 3.21 inches. On the same date this year it was 3.19.

4.15-Inch Shortage

In central Ohio, the lack of rainfall has been even greater than during the 1930 drought. The shortage then was 3.59 inches as compared with 4.15 inches now. In the city of Columbus this year's precipitation is 7.18 inches less than normal as compared with 5.70 last summer.

Rainfall in southern counties this season is 3.69 inches below normal as compared with 7.14 inches in 1930 when they bore the brunt of the drought damage in Ohio. No reports of a drinking water shortage have reached the state department of health, several counties have drilled new wells to prevent recurrence of 1930 conditions.

40-Year-Old Pastor Sets Endurance Mark

COTTON VALLEY, LA., July 15—Rev. E. A. Sandifer, 40-year-old pastor of the Cotton Valley Baptist church, today had a record of preaching continuously for 58 1-2 hours.

Mr. Sandifer started his discourse at 11 a. m. Sunday. He paused now and then to partake of raw eggs, chocolate and coffee and once to change his shirt.

His wife said "the Lord is responsible for Mr. Sandifer holding out so long."

He had an audience that ranged from 60 in the early morning hours to nearly 1,000 in the evening. The books of Paul, the status of the church and modern conditions in relation to the coming of the millennium, were his subjects. When he finished he said he "felt fine".

"No comebacks"—when you smoke Chesterfields.

The tobaccos are right! Chesterfield uses only mild, ripe, sweet-tasting tobaccos—the best and purest money can buy.

The blend is right! It's an art to put tobaccos together the Chesterfield way—in the exact proportions which bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco type. A science too! For each type of tobacco used must pass rigid laboratory tests for mildness, for aroma, for taste. No raw inferior tobaccos ever find their way into Chesterfield cigarettes!

The manufacture is right. Every Chesterfield is well-filled, well-formed and burns evenly.

The paper is right—in texture, weight and purity. Money can't buy better.

The taste is right. It is not by accident that Chesterfield holds its smokers. They're milder—and yet They Satisfy.

MARKETS

STOCKS DOWN IN EARLY TRADING

Action of Market in Sympathy With Foreign Price Trends

NEW YORK, July 15 — After drifting uncertainly for the better part of two sessions, the stock market took a decisive turn downward in the early trading today.

The volume of selling increased, and losses of a point or two were common among the principal shares during the first half hour.

The action of the local market was in sympathy with a down turn in London, and weakness of the Paris market, opening after a four-day holiday.

Despite the fact that there was no letup in the tension over the German situation, brokers indicated that there was little inclination toward hasty selling here, but that to be coming into this market from considerable liquidation appeared to be coming into this market from overseas.

Foreign exchanges opened decidedly unsettled, with the pound sterling under considerable pressure, opening at $4.85, off about half a cent. In contrast, the French franc was strong, suggesting French withdrawals from London. The German mark was nominally quoted around 21 cents.

U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Case and Atchison declined 2 to 3 points, while stocks off a point or so included General Motors, General Electric, International Telephone, American D. Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas, North American, DuPont and Westinghouse Electric.

DIAMOND VICTOR IN COURT TRIAL

N. York Gangster Leader Freed From Assault Charge In Troy

(By Associated Press)

TROY, N. Y., July 7—Jack Diamond, who has "beaten the rap" many times on charges from petty crime to murder, stood freed once again today, victor over the entire legal forces of New York state in a determined effort to end his gangster career with a prison term.

Arrested many times, and twice cut down by enemy gunfire, the former bodyguard of the slain gambler, Arnold Rothstein again showed his luck had not deserted him.

He was acquitted of an assault charge last night by a jury which heard the story of Grover Parks, Catskill mountain truckman, in a two-day trial. Parks said he was beaten and tortured by fire by Diamond and his gang April 15, because he did not reveal the location of Rothstein.

CONCERNING CHILDREN

All children should have savings accounts in their own names. At an early age, they should be taught the value of money and the meaning of interest. When in school, they should be encouraged to make monthly deposits in the bank, even though the account be small, so that they may become accustomed to systematic saving.

This early training will bear fruit when they enter the business world.

plain lice destroyer, is a considerable change.

We human beings know about our past and future as little as the whale knows about his.

Vice President Curtis will not run with President Hoover in 1932, preferring to run for the senate. Whom would you recommend as a running mate for President Hoover? What name would add strength to the ticket?

Do a dozen come to your mind, or do you wonder that, with 123,000,000 people around there are so few men well enough known, sufficiently esteemed and trusted by the public, to make a nomination equal to an election.

We have many powerful men that attend to business and making money, few that attend to public affairs, out side of the crowd that goes into politics, also to make money.

Selective FREE WHEELING is

Essex Super-Six
7-Pass. Sedan

The New Essex Super-Six, which now includes Selective Free Wheeling, excites the enthusiasm of all. But its strongest appeal is to those who have owned Essex for years. They are the ones best qualified to judge it. And their spontaneous approval is convincing proof of its genuine fineness.

You'll find Essex owners are folks that like to tour. They think nothing of thousand-mile trips that call for two-day schedules, because they know that Essex is always ready to go when they are. Hence, they are the most severe critics of a car's performance, its year in and year out endurance, and low operating cost.

They expect and get a lot in Essex. And thus it is important that those who are most familiar with Essex are the most enthusiastic over the New Super-Six with Selective Free Wheeling. They say: "We didn't think it possible to make Essex finer or better—but you've certainly done it!"

Doesn't this loyalty to Essex stand as your most convincing proof of Essex quality and ability? If you want final proof, drive the new Essex Super-Six and experience its brilliant, nimble and smooth performance, made even more luxurious because of Selective Free Wheeling.

 "Indiscreet," Gloria Swanson's latest offering opens tonight at the State.

The piece is a fast moving comedy-drama, with Miss Swanson rising to the opportunities afforded in a highly brilliant manner, and she is capably supported by a cast of unusual talent headed by Ben Lyon, with such other top-notchers as Barbara Kent, Arthur Lake, Monroe Owsley and Maude Elburne.

Of outstanding note is the fact that the story was written especially for Miss Swanson by the famous song writers De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, who have successfully turned their talents from song writing to that of dramatics. They have given her a story of modern society with subtle humor, without an enthralling plot of life in the upper strata of society.

Miss Swanson sings two songs in the picture, "Come To Me" and "If You Haven't Got Love," both of which were written for her by De Sylva, Brown and Henderson.

"UP POPS THE DEVIL" At The Grand

"Up Pops the Devil," comedy-romance at the Grand Theater, has in its cast nearly a dozen of the most capable romantic and character actors in Hollywood.

Skeets Gallagher, Stuart Erwin, Carole Lombard, Lilyan Tashman and Norman Foster head the cast. Others are Edward J. Nugent, Theodore von Eltz, Joyce Compton, Harry Beresford, Sleep N. Eat, and Guy Oliver.

"Up Pops the Devil" is based on the Broadway comedy hit of the same name which played at the Baskin Theatre in New York the past season.

The story deals with the lives of a young couple, Foster and Miss Lombard, who live in a circle of "good time" artists and writers in the very sophisticated region of which MacDougal Street is the admitted "main stem." Their apartment is in a continual uproar due to the everlasting visits of their hosts of gay-life friends—then they see their faults and decide to lead their own lives. Many humorous episodes follow.

MULLINS DEFEATS LAUNDRY FOR THIRD STRAIGHT LEAGUE WIN

THE DAY In Sports

LOUGHRAN'S RISE STEADY DEFEATS MIKE MCGUIRE

IN JANUARY, 1928, there came to the notice of the American sport public the name of Tommy Loughran when, at Madison Square Garden, New York, the Philadelphia made his first appearance under the auspices of controllers of real money in the fast racket. He met Mike McGuire, Irish champion of the world's light heavyweights, a decisive trouncing and the world began to wonder how Loughran, who had been fighting the best there was for eight years, had never before been given a chance in New York.

Loughran defeated the great Harry Greb twice, fought him to no-decision once and lost to him once by a shade. Before he met McGuire in New York he trimmed the great Irishman in two no-decision battles. But these were all outside of the magic life of Manhattan. He never reached the Garden until he had built himself into a compelling drawing card while scores of other pugilists, less worthy, are built into an attraction by ballyhoo that is false to extremes.

It's good advertising for boxing to have in it two popular figures like Loughran and Tunney. Certainly, they deserve more than do others who drop by the wayside due to fidelity to roustabout traditions of drinking and fast living that once clung to the profession's leading lights. And whether you like Tunney or not, you must admit his superiority to the common herd of fighters, his wisdom in creating for himself a fund of money sufficient to make for his graceful retirement into Gotham society. Show us another who can duplicate that feat.

TUNNEY AND LOUGHRAN were both presented in the ring at the Schmeling-Stribling fight. The former was both hissed and cheered, the latter was given a great ovation. He is beautiful to look at in the ring but the lack of punching ability may prove a big handicap to his hopes of a heavyweight championship. He won the light-heavy title without a punch, however, and may again attain titular heights in the same manner.

The elimination of the slugger type of batter from ranks of American fighters is one of three natural changes which must come about. The Golden Gloves tournaments sponsored in Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, New York and other cities, including Youngstown, are making for one—that of development of good fighters and boxers in amateur tournaments. From an attendance standpoint they are greater successes than professional bouts. As developers of brilliant boxers they have not yet been notable but an amateur, yet keen, cannot be built in a day.

The third need in boxing is development of interest, support and control from the same class of sportsmen that labor unceasingly in behalf of other sports and maintain them on a high level. Some of this support coming from Anthony J. Drexel-Biddle, Jr., William F. Carey, Richard Hoyt, James Bush and Matthew Brush is already in evidence. These men are already like them can save the day for boxing. Indeed, they may even save the prize ring itself. What is needed is a complete house cleaning in the substructure where all the "wise boys" operate.

THE PURPOSE of these ideas on fistian's troubles is not to dilate on the ills of commercialized boxing today but to inquire into what hopeful tendencies may be found in the situation, what salvage is to be looked for and what the means are for restoring the sport to a level deserving public faith.

Ohioans suffered because the championship fight at Cleveland did not prove a financial success. It is probable that it will be years before the state is given a similar battle because of lack of support. But there should be no criticism thrown at the public, none at the boxers. The higher-ups are the ones to be criticised. There will either be a new era in boxing or the future of the prize ring is doomed.

An indication of this can readily be found in the fact that wrestling has replaced the spirit in thousands of American cities. But the grappler and grunted rackets can't last either—it's filled with fakes, thrown and artificial brawls—so what have you?

Fight Results

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS—Tracy Cox, Indianapolis, stopped Steve Smith, Bridgeport, Conn., (6).
DETROIT—Jackie Horner, St. Louis, outboxed Tony Lombardo, Toledo, (10) Stan Sabin, Detroit, outpointed Bobby Young, Pittsburgh (6).

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa.—W. P. Wehrle, optician, has among his choice souvenirs a baseball with which he pitched and won a Western League game in 1888. He was pitching for Hastings, Neb., and Omaha was the victim. The ball was an official make of that time and bears the name "Shibes".

CHAMPIONS TAKE EASY 7-3 GAME; HARDWARE WINS

Two Hig Innings Factors In Winning Tilt For Foremen's Club

FITZPATRICK GRANTS LOSERS ONLY 3 HITS

Community Station Tossers Lose, 16-8; Set New Record for Errors

A champion is always hard to defeat and the Mullins Foremen's club team is an ideal example of this slogan of sport.

The Foremen's club, clouting out seven runs in two big frames while Jimmie Fitzpatrick was holding the opposition safe all the way, annexed its third straight victory of the second half season Tuesday at Centennial park, pounding out a 7-3 verdict over the American Laundry team.

Score In Two Innings
Four runs in the first and three more in the sixth were all the clubmen tallied but these were plenty. Fitzpatrick allowed but three hits, six errors by his teammates being main factors in three runs scored by the losers.

Joe Dorcheck, Mullins infielder, continued his consistent hitting with two safeties and advanced into the first five in league batting. Judy Myers hit safely twice in as many official times at bat. Les Olden and Arthur Borton also connected safely twice.

Hardware Wins, 16-8
The Community Service Station team established a new league record for errors, committing 15 misplays, and lost a one-sided 16-8 verdict to the Salem Hardware team in Tuesday's opening battle. Clifford Greenstein was the winning hurler with McNamee the victim.

Incidentally it was the 1930 champions' first win out of three starts this half.
